
Alison Frank Logue

Alison Frank Logue

Alison Frank Logue, 89, passed away peacefully on May 3, 2017. He will be greatly missed by his family and friends. Frank was a loving and devoted husband to his wife Barbara during their 66 years together. He was also a loving brother to Vernon, a loving and involved father to his son Gregory Logue (Christine) and daughter Andrea Nicolaisen (Christopher Wesche), a devoted grandfather to his granddaughter Cheryl Thompson (Shane) and grandsons Justin Logue (Jessica) and Luke Nicolaisen, and to his five great-granddaughters, Courtney, Rebekah, Emma, Kiran and Varya. Frank cherished his family and was always available with words of wisdom and encouragement.

Frank grew up in Bremerton, where he met the love of his life, Barbara, and where he was a star high school athlete. After a short career in minor league baseball as a pitcher, Frank returned to Washington, obtained a degree in accounting at the University of Washington and had a successful career with the Boeing Company, culminating in their Computer Services division. After retiring, he devoted his time to watching sports, playing golf, enjoying the great outdoors and taking daily walks to stay healthy. No matter where he was or who he spoke with, Frank always had a kind word and a corny joke to share.

Frank loved sports and he shared this love with his family and friends as a fan of both the local college and professional sports teams; that love has carried down through the generations.

Frank leaves behind a legacy of honor, kindness, generosity, humor, and a strong work ethic that resonates in the hearts of his family and friends.

In lieu of flowers, contributions in Frank's memory may be made to Northwest Trek or the Nature Conservancy.

A private service will be held Sunday, May 21 at his daughter's home in Seattle.

Published in The Seattle Times on May 14, 2017
