

FORMER BALL PLAYER DIES

Columbus, O., Aug. 3.—William A. ("Tony") James, Columbus attorney and former professional baseball player, died last night of Bright's disease at Magnetic Springs, O., where he had gone in hopes of recovering his health, which had been failing for the last year. James was at one time catcher for the Columbus American association team and also had served as catcher on the Kansas City and St. Paul teams in the same organization.
