

FORMER SHAMOKIN BALLPLAYER DIES

Robert Chellew, 62, Harrisburg, former professional baseball player with Shamokin, Mount Carmel and later with York in the old Tri-State League, died Thursday in his home at Harrisburg, where he held a state position several years.

"Red" Chellew, as the retired baseball star was known, is remembered as a star outfielder with Shamokin and Mount Carmel teams shortly after the turn of the century. Prior to that service he played with the famed Linder team of Carlisle. He left here to join the Tri-State League. His funeral is to be held Monday at Harrisburg.

Clipped By:

timcopeland
Mon, May 18, 2015