By Fernando Ballesteros

Miguel Suarez, the best guitarist in Mexican baseball in the 70s, died Wednesday in his native Guasave, Sinaloa. He was 65 years old.

Suarez, a member of the Mexican Baseball Hall of Fame, was an important part of Guasave's sole Cottons title in the LMP during the 1971-72 season, when he was named Rookie of the Year.

In the 70's he was one of the greatest idols of the Red Devils of Mexico, with whom he was also Rookie of the Year in 1971.

He was so great as a hitter that for nine consecutive seasons he hit more than 150 hits in the Mexican League, for which he earned the nickname of Mr. Hit.

Suárez began his career in 1971 with the Red Devils and finished it in 1987 with the Los Angeles Negros de Puebla, when he was 36 years old.

DEVIL UNTIL DEATH

Miguel Suárez was one of the players who benefited from the pensions granted by Alfredo Harp Helú to retired players who spent many years with the Devils.

In April 2004 he was at the Foro Sol and a photograph was taken at the Devils' dugout with the then rookie sensation of the team, Carlos Figueroa.

YOUR PHRASES:

Suarez had a Twitter account that registered activity until October 13, 2016.

In this account he wrote the following phrases referring to the batting: "Before and during a turn at bat try to think only of hit connect, if your mind is thinking something different, look for it to embase you".

"The importance of knowing how to make a good touch of the ball is not only to sacrifice oneself and help the team; It is also useful to get out of a slump. "
